Re: Proposed Congressional Plans HB1, SB5, and SB20 Run Afoul of Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act of 1965

Dear Chair Stefanski, Chair Hewitt, and Other Members of the House and Senate Governmental Affairs Committees:

The NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc. (“LDF”), the ACLU Voting Rights Project, American Civil Liberties Union Foundation of Louisiana, Louisiana Justice Institute, Louisiana State Conference of the NAACP, and Power Coalition for Equity and Justice write in opposition to HB1, SB5, and SB20.¹ Each of these proposals contravene

Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 (“Section 2”) because they fail to provide Black voters with an equal opportunity to participate in the political process and elect candidates of their choice.² As such, we strongly urge you to reject these proposals and consider some of the alternative proposals that would not violate Section 2, including, among others, HB5, HB8, HB9, HB12, SB2, SB4, SB6, SB9, SB10, SB11, and SB18.³

I. HB1, SB5, and SB20 Perpetuate Severe Under-Representation of Black Voters in Louisiana’s Congressional Delegation

If HB1, SB5 or SB20 are enacted, Black Louisianans will continue to be severely under-represented in Louisiana’s congressional map. Like the current congressional configuration, these proposals only provide one district in which Black voters have any opportunity to elect candidates of their choice. As a result, Black Louisianans—who comprise over 33% of Louisiana’s population⁴—would only have an opportunity to elect candidates of their choice in one out of six (16.7%) of Louisiana’s congressional districts in each of these proposals. Similarly, Louisiana’s white population would be dramatically overrepresented: only 58% of Louisiana’s population is non-Hispanic white,⁵ but the candidates preferred by white voters would generally prevail in five out of six (83.3%) districts in each of these proposals.

II. HB1, SB5, and SB20 Contravene Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act.

HB1, SB5, and SB20 clearly satisfy the test established by the Supreme Court in Thornburg v. Gingles, 478 U.S. 30 (1986). Our October 18, 2021, letter includes an extensive overview of the three Gingles preconditions and the totality of circumstances factors that

These bills include versions of the maps submitted to the Committees on October 18, 2021, by a coalition of organizations, including the undersigned. govern the Section 2 analysis.⁶ For the reasons explained below, if the legislature enacts any of these proposed plans, each of the three Gingles preconditions would be satisfied, and there is overwhelming evidence that under the totality of circumstances, Black voters have less opportunity than other members of the electorate to participate in the political process and elect candidates of their choice.⁷

a. Gingles Precondition One: It Is Possible to Draw a Congressional District Map with Two Majority-Minority Opportunity Districts.

If HB1, SB5, or SB20 are enacted, the first Gingles precondition would be satisfied because it is beyond question that Louisiana's Black population is sufficiently large and geographically compact to constitute a majority of voters in a second congressional district.⁸ There are numerous alternative congressional maps that have already been introduced during this special session that provide for a second majority-Black district that contains communities of interest of importance to Black voters, thus proving that the first Gingles precondition would be satisfied. For example, we suggest that you consider proposed congressional plans HB5, HB8, HB9, HB12, SB2, SB4, SB6, SB9, SB10, SB11, and SB18, each of which present alternative configurations that would comply with Section 2.

All of these proposals are more compact than HB1, SB5, and SB20 on at least on at least two of the three widely recognized statistical measures of compactness. In particular, some of the proposals, including HB5, HB8, HB9, SB2, SB6, SB9, SB10, and SB11, are more compact than HB1, SB5, and SB20 on all three measures of compactness.

b. Gingles Preconditions Two and Three: Louisiana Elections Reflect Racially Polarized Voting Patterns.

There is overwhelming evidence that the second and third Gingles preconditions will be satisfied if HB1, SB5, or SB20 are enacted. Based on a preliminary analysis of these proposals, we have confirmed that candidates preferred by Black voters would usually be defeated by candidates preferred by white voters by overwhelming margins in five of the six districts. This analysis is consistent with Louisiana's well-documented history and ongoing record of racially polarized voting in elections across the state.⁹ For example, over the past three decades, numerous federal courts have found that racially polarized voting pervades

⁶ We urge you to refer to our October 18, 2021, letter for a summary of the legal standard established in Gingles. See supra note 3, Section II.

Louisiana’s statewide and local elections.¹⁰ Additionally, in the past two decades—including as recently as this year—the Department of Justice (DOJ) has sued local parishes under Section 2 three times; in each case, the DOJ identified racially polarized voting patterns within the parish.¹¹

c. Totality of Circumstances: Louisiana’s Voters of Color Have Less Opportunity to Elect Candidates of Their Choice.

If HB1, SB5, or SB20 are enacted, Black voters will be denied an equal opportunity to elect candidates of their choice under the totality of circumstances.¹² As explained in detail

in our October 18, 2021, letter, many of the congressionally delineated “Senate Factors” strongly indicate that vote dilution is occurring in contravention of Section 2.¹³

III. The Louisiana State Legislature Can Avoid Violating Section 2 By Enacting a Map with Two Majority-Black Districts.

For the reasons explained above, the congressional maps proposed in HB1, SB5, and SB20 disregard the mandates of Section 2. As we have repeatedly reminded you, the Louisiana State Legislature has an affirmative obligation to comply with Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act. You have been presented with a significant number of proposals, including but not limited to HB5, HB8, HB9, HB12, SB2, SB4, SB6, SB9, SB10, SB11, and SB18, that would comply with Section 2 by including a second majority-Black district.¹⁴ As such, we strongly urge you to consider one of the proposed bills that include a second majority-Black district.

Please feel free to contact LDF Redistricting Counsel Michael Pernick at (917) 790-3597 or by email at mpernick@naacpldf.org with any questions or to discuss these issues in more detail.

Sincerely,

/s/ Michael Pernick

¹³ Our October 18, 2021, letter provides further detailed examples of Senate Factor evidence demonstrating that Black voters have not had an equal opportunity to participate in the political process in Louisiana. See supra note 3, Section III.c.

¹⁴ Indeed, the Legislature has been on notice since 2019 that a map with only one majority-Black district may violate Section 2, when a court held that a Section 2 challenge to Louisiana’s current congressional districts—alleging, among other things, that an additional majority-Black district could be developed—was credible enough to survive a motion to dismiss. Johnson v. Ardoin, No. 18-cv-00625, 2019 WL 2329319 (M.D. La. May 31, 2019). Moving forward with a map that fails to include a second majority-Black district with knowledge of the harm caused to Black voters may evince an intent to discriminate and could provide grounds for relief under Section 3 of the Voting Rights Act. See Texas All. for Retired Americans v. Hughs, 489 F. Supp. 3d 667, 691–92 (S.D. Tex. 2020) (citing U.S. v. Brown, 561 F.3d 420, 433 (5th Cir. 2009)) (“In considering a discriminatory intent claim under Section 2, the Court considers the Arlington-Heights factors along with the Gingles factors.”); Pers. Adm’r of Massachusetts v. Feeney, 442 U.S. 256, 279 (holding that discriminatory purpose “implies that the decisionmaker, in this case a state legislature, selected or reaffirmed a particular course of action at least in part because of, not merely in spite of, its adverse effects upon an identifiable group”). Section 3(c) of the Voting Rights Act remains an avenue for federal courts to “bail in” or order jurisdictions to obtain preclearance for voting changes from the Attorney General or federal court. 52 U.S.C. § 10302(c). See e.g., Patino v. City of Pasadena, 230 F. Supp. 3d 667, 729 (S.D. Tex. 2017) (requiring the City of Pasadena to submit future changes to its electoral map and plan to the Department of Justice for preclearance under Section 3(c) after finding that city officials had intentionally discriminated against Latino voters to dilute their voting strength).
